Body slippage was reduced, and his posture when exiting the bed has changed.

To improve these problems, welfare equipment leasing agent Mr. A suggested the RAKUSHO Z, which can raise the back in a stable posture with little body slippage. At first Mr. I hesitated, but after discussion with the care manager Ms. O and the caregiver, he decided to use it.

Since he started using RAKUSHO Z, Mr. I has really felt the improvement. “With this bed, I can raise the back to a position where I can easily sit up in bed. Before, it was very difficult because I used to slip down in the bed.”

The equipment leasing agent Mr. A also felt the changes. “Since he started using RAKUSHO Z, his posture as he gets out of bed is more stable than before.

He can exit the bed more safely and has reduced the number of calls to the security company.

Mr. I is determined to be active, and is always making improvements that allow him to get about more easily. He can make fine adjustments to the bed height on his own, and is able to stand up more safely than before. There has also been a large decrease in the number of times he falls when getting out of bed. “Since I started using RAKUSHO Z, getting out of bed is much safer. The number of times I call the security company has dropped to 4 or 5 times per month. Each call costs money, so this has been good economically as well.”

He has also been able to continue his favorite hobby. “Once a week I go bowling with friends. It is my reason for living.” Mr. I smiles and his face lights up with energy as he speaks.
